短文改错(10 分)

I got up early this morning, so I went to school without breakfast. I walked in so a hurry that I stepped on a banana peel dropped by an old man walk in front of me. As result, I slipped and fell in my back. I am so angry that I wanted to blame the old man, so I controlled myself at last. I picked out the banana peel, put it into the dustbin and running to school. The class had begun, but I was very happy because I did that what I should do to protect our environment.

第 I 卷(选择题)

第一节 阅读理解(共 15 小题;每小题 2 分,满分 30 分)

阅读下列短文,从每题所给的 A、B、C 和 D 四个选项中,选出最佳选项。

A

The latest fashion in kitchen is the food steamer. All the stores are selling them; everyone wants one. Steaming is one of the simplest and healthiest ways of cooking food. However, the cooking time is usually longer than with other methods. In case you're thinking of buying a steamer, I've done a survey about the steamers available on the market to help you decide which will suit you best.

●Folding Steamer

The simplest and least expensive is the folding stainless-steel(不锈钢) version.

Advantages: This is a good, basic design which sits inside a variety of different shapes of pans with the water under it; a ring in the center allows for easy lifting and it's easy to clean.

Disadvantages: It only holds small dishes. Also, if you put too much water in the pan, it will boil up through the vegetables and they will be watery. If you put too little water in and let it get dry, you will burn the pan and get strange-smelling vegetables.

●Steaming Pan

This is a three-layered black Teflon-coated version with a lid and two double-handled steamers, which sits on the oven ring. The brand I bought is called Nutritious Living.

Advantages: This is an excellent steamer, lightweight, easy to clean, and of all the steamers I've tried, this cooks the fastest. Fish and chicken can be cooked on the bottom with rice or vegetables on the top. It's easier to store.

Disadvantages: Water can boil away until the pan is dry, but if you make sure you fill the pan up to the suggested level and do not overcook the food, this should not happen. You cannot see the food cooking from the top. It doesn't supply a dish for cooking rice.

For serious users of steamers, I recommend having one of each version. If you just want to try it, get the folding stainless-steel type.

1. The author carried out the survey in order to _____.
 A. learn how to cook with steamers
 B. run an advertisement for steamers
 C. find out a suitable steamer to buy
 D. inform people of different steamers
2. According to the passage, the folding steamer _____.
 A. is easy to take out
 B. is able to clean itself
 C. is designed for large families
 D. comes in different kinds of shapes and sizes
3. What can we learn about the Nutritious Living steamer?
 A. It is more difficult to store.
 B. It cooks different foods at the same time.
 C. It provides a dish to cook rice with.
 D. It cooks fish and chicken faster than vegetables.

B

I once had a friend that was diagnosed with terminal cancer, and the news that he might only have six months to live was a great shock to him, his family, and his friends. However, in spite of the serious illness, he was initially determined to look into all available treatments that might cure or extend his life. I think that when you find yourself in such situations, you tend to look up every possible way for hope of saving your life.

As months went on and his health grew worse, I noticed an unexpected change in attitude that came over him. He had also been a happy person with a cheerful personality, but rather than give in to discouragement and self-pity, he took comfort in God and humanity. His talks focused on others rather than himself, and he spoke of the afterlife as something he was prepared for, believing that his concerned ancestors, including his mother and father, were there waiting for him.

During the last few months, weeks, and days of his life, he was kindly cared for by family, friends, his loving wife, who attended to both his physical and emotional needs, and workers from a local hospice(安养院) came to the home to regulate his medication and provide any other needed support. He didn't complain about his fate, and he willingly allowed others to serve him.

Indeed, one might think why God allows death and suffering in our world, but for me, such experiences taught me to value family more and kindness to others. You often can't learn these important attributes in the lap of luxury, and perhaps, such an experience is the greatest and final gift the illness can give those left behind.

4. Which word can best describe the man's initial reaction as soon as he was diagnosed with cancer?
 A. Satisfied.                      B. Terrified.                      C. Surprised.                      D. Confused.
5. After several months with the disease, the man's comfort mainly came from _____.
 A. his family and friends                      B. the care from others
 C. his doctors' encouragement                      D. his belief in humanity
6. From his friend's story, the author learned _____.
 A. getting comfort from God                      B. extending life as far as possible
 C. giving more respect to friends                      D. caring for yourself and enjoying luxury
7. What does the author mainly want to tell?
 A. Our characters can be strengthened by such an unpleasant situation.

- B. Families provide the best support system during such a crisis.
- C. People should help those who have got serious illness.
- D. All people will face death, and thus, we must prepare for it spiritually.

C

Today, there are many chances for those who wish to continue their education. However, nearly all require some break in one's career in order to attend school full time.

Part-time education, that is, attending school at night or for one weekend a month, tends to drag the process out over time and puts the completion of a degree program out of reach of many people. Additionally, such programs require a fixed time commitment which can also impact negatively on one's career and family time.

Of the many approaches to teaching and learning, however, perhaps the most flexible is that called distance learning. Distance learning is an educational method which allows the students the flexibility to study at his or her own pace to achieve the academic goals which are so necessary in today's world. The time required to study may be set aside at the student's convenience. Additionally, the student may enroll (登记) in distance learning courses from actually any place in the world, while continuing to pursue their chosen career. Individual assistance may be available via regular air-mail, telephone, fax machine, teleconferencing and over the Internet.

Good distance learning programs are characterized by the inclusion of a subject evaluation tool with every subject, so a student doesn't need to travel away from home to take a test. Another characteristic of a good distance learning program is the equivalence (等同) of the distance learning course with the same subject materials as those students taking the course on the home campus. The resultant diploma or degree should also be the same whether distance learning or on-campus study is employed. The individuality of the professor/student relationship is another characteristic of a good distance learning program. In the final analysis, a good distance learning program has a place not only for the individual student but also the company or business that wants to work in partnership with their employees for the educational benefit, professional development, and business growth of the organization. Supporting distance learning programs for their employees gives the business the advantage of retaining (留住) career-minded people while contributing to their personal and professional growth through education.

8. According to the passage, which of the following is a disadvantage of full time education?

- A. It tends to last too long for many people to complete a degree program.
- B. It gives the student less time to share with the family.
- C. It requires some break in one's career.
- D. It affects one's career.

9. What benefit will distance learning program bring to a business?

- A. Attracting more talented people.
- B. Good image of the business.
- C. Better cooperation with universities.
- D. Further training of employees and business growth.

10. Good distance learning program have the following characteristics EXCEPT _____.

- A. distance learning course is the same as students taking courses on campus
- B. the diploma or degree should be the same as on campus study
- C. professor-student relationship is strictly one to one all through the course
- D. it includes a subject evaluation tool

11. What benefit will distance learning bring to an employee of a business?

- A. Higher salary.
- B. Professional growth.
- C. Good impression on the employer.
- D. Good relationship with the employer.

One of the main challenges facing many countries is how to maintain their identity in the face of globalization and the growing multi-language trend. "One of the main reasons for economic failure in many African countries is the fact that, with a few important exceptions, mother-tongue education is not practiced in any of the independent African states." said Neville Alexander, Director of the Project for the Study of Alternative Education in South Africa at the University of Cape Town.

In response to the spread of English and the increased multi-language trends arising from immigration, many countries have introduced language laws into the laws in the last decade. In some, the use of languages other than the national language is banned in public spaces such as advertising posters. One of the first such legal provisions (条款) was the 1994 "Toubon law" in France, but the idea has been copied in many countries since then. Such efforts to govern language use are often dismissed as futile by language experts, who are well aware of the difficulty in controlling fashions in speech and know from research that language switching among bilinguals is a natural process.

It is especially difficult for native speakers of English to understand the desire to maintain the "purity" of a language by law. Since the time of Shakespeare, English has continually absorbed foreign words into its own language. English is one of the most mixed and rapidly changing languages in the world, but there has not been a barrier to acquiring prestige and power. Another reason for the failure of many native English speakers to understand the role of state regulation is that it has never been the Anglo-Saxon way of doing things. English has never had a state-controlled authority for the language, similar, for example, to the Academic Francaise in France.

The need to protect national languages is, for most western Europeans, a recent phenomenon—especially the need to ensure that English does not unnecessarily take over too many fields. Public communication, education and new modes of communication promoted by technology, may be key fields to defend.

12. Neville Alexander believes that _____.

- A. mother-tongue education is not practiced in all African countries
- B. lack of mother-tongue education can lead to economic failure
- C. globalization has led to the rise of multi-language trends
- D. globalization has resulted in the economic failure of Africa

13. The underlined word "futile" (in Paragraph 2) most probably means "_____".

- A. useless
- B. practical
- C. workable
- D. unnecessary

14. Why do many English-speaking countries not support the language protection efforts described in the passage?

- A. They think language protection laws are ineffective.
- B. They want their language to spread to other countries.
- C. They have a long history of taking words from other languages.
- D. It reduces a language's ability to acquire international importance.

15. The main idea of the passage is _____.

- A. fighting against the rule of English
- B. globalization and multi-language trends
- C. protecting local languages and identities
- D. to maintain the purity of language by law

Suggestions for developing Self-Love

Self-love is both an attitude and an act, which is how you view yourself and how you live your life. Self-love is a daily practice — not a destination. So you can show yourself some love every day. Here are some ways to practice and develop self-love.

Get to know yourself. 16 Spend some alone time, take out your journal and ask yourself the questions. View this exercise like a coffee date with an acquaintance you'd like to get to know better or a heart-to-heart with a close friend.

17 The people who you surround yourself with play an important role in your happiness and health. They can contribute to the joy in your life, or they can steal it. They can expand your stress, or they can help you shrink it. Self-love includes surrounding yourself with people you trust who have your heart in mind.

Practice self-compassion. For many people, criticizing themselves comes naturally. Not so much. We're much better at supporting someone else than ourselves—especially if we've made a mistake, missed a deadline or said the wrong thing. 18 Self-compassion is associated with greater well-being, including more effective coping and less depression and anxiety. So the next time you want to flog yourself, instead, extend some self-compassion. Ask yourself how you'd treat a friend who's just experienced the same thing.

Set and sustain(维持) your boundaries. Boundaries are an essential part of having a healthy relationship with others—and yourself! In order to set your boundaries, figure out your limits. To sustain your boundaries, communicate your needs directly (don't expect others to just know), and let people know when they've crossed a boundary. 19

Accept yourself. Everyone has three sides: the good, the bad and the messy. Accept that you're a fallible person and that you will make mistakes. It's simply part of being human. 20 Accepting yourself also means celebrating your great qualities. Don't shy away from praising your personal strengths. Be your own cheerleader.

Self-love is a series of daily steps and choices. It's carving out some time for self-care. Self-love is the realization that you're a genuinely good person who deserves genuinely good things.

A. Be more supportive.

B. Self-criticism only makes things worse.

C. Surround yourself with supportive people.

D. Describe the differences between who you were and who you are becoming.

E. Preserving your boundaries isn't easy, but it's important for respecting and honoring yourself.

F. Accepting yourself means digging deep, and discovering the many sides that make up who you are.

G. Before you can honor your needs, dreams and wishes, you need to know what they actually look like.

第三节 完形填空(共20小题;每小题1.5分,满分30分)

阅读下面短文,从短文后各题所给的A、B、C和D四个选项中,选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。

Big things were happening in my life the summer after I turned 13. In the middle of that summer, my parents 21 my entire world and turned it upside down 22 they told me they were getting a divorce. I couldn't believe that our family was going to 23. Though I always knew my parents weren't very happy and they often 24, I still wanted my family to stay the same.

My life changed completely 25 the divorce. My mother and I moved into a small apartment across town, 26 my father and brother, Bill, stayed in our house. I now became a 27 whenever I went to see my dad and Bill on the weekends. And immediately I had my stepfather, Dan, whom I showed no 28 in. I was depressed, especially after Dan and my mother married and I realized that there was no 29 that things could change back to the way they were.

Even though I 30 all Dan's attempts to get to know me and wasn't very 31 to him, he never gave up on me. 32, I began to trust him. I realized that we actually had some things in 33, especially when it came to movies and TV shows. We 34 a lot of time together hanging out watching TV. That gave us a chance to talk and get to know each other.

Better still, Dan showed an interest in me that I had never experienced from my own father. Dan was always around when I needed 35 on school or friends. Once I began to warm up to Dan, the three of us began spending a lot of time together. We often went out to eat and took short trips. 36, I discovered that I had the happy family that I had always wanted.

I now realize my parents were 37 about getting the divorce. Their divorce was the best thing to happen for all of us. My father also found happiness—he 38 and had another child, my half-sister, Michelle.

At 13, I learned an important 39—change is not always the worst thing that can 40. Sometimes, it is just what we need the most.
