Travel Unaccompanied

Now many young people are traveling around the world on their own, not because they have no one to travel with, but because they prefer to go alone.

Kristina Wegscheider from California first traveled alone when she was at college and believes that it is something everyone should do at least once in their life. "It opens up your mind to new things and pushes you out of your comfort zone." Wegscheider has visited 46 countries covering all seven continents.

In foreign countries, with no one to help you read a map, look after you if you get ill, or lend you money if your wallet is stolen. It is challenging. This is what drives young people to travel alone. It is seen as character building and a chance to prove that they can make it on their own.

Chris Richardson decided to leave his sales job in Australia to go traveling last year. He set up a website, The Aussie Nomad, to document his adventures. He said he wished he had traveled alone earlier. "The people you meet, the places you visit, or the things you do, everything is up to you and it forces you to grow as a person," said the 30-year-old.

Richardson describes traveling alone like "a shot in the arm", which "makes you a more confident person that was ready to deal with anything". He said, "The feeling of having conquered something on my own is a major part of what drives me each day when I'm dealing with a difficult task. I walk around with my head up because I know deep down inside that nothing is impossible if you try."

The great 19th century explorer John Muir once said, "Only by going alone in silence can one truly get into the heart of the wilderness."

44. Which of the following will Kristina Wegscheider agree with?

A. Traveling alone is a necessary experience for everyone.

B. It is more meaningful to travel in foreign countries.

C. It is comfortable to travel around without a friend.

D. Traveling abroad helps people to find new things.

45. Traveling alone is challenging because _____.

A. it will finally build your character

B. you have to make things on your own

C. you depend on yourself whatever happens

D. it is hard for you to prove yourself to others

46. What can we infer about Chris Richardson?

A. He started traveling at an early age.

B. He was once shot in the arm.

C. His website inspires others a lot.

D. He used to work as a salesman.

Three Questions

King Frederick the Great (弗雷德里克大帝) of Prussia had a very fine army, and none of the soldiers in it were finer than his Giant Guards (巨人禁卫军), who were all extremely tall men. It was difficult to find enough soldiers for these Guards, as there were not many men who were tall enough.

Frederick had made it a rule that no soldiers who did not speak German could be admitted to the Giant Guards, and this made the work of the officers who had to find men for them even more difficult. When they had to choose between accepting or refusing a really tall man who knew no German, the officers used to accept him, and then teach him enough German to be able to answer if the King questioned him.

Frederick sometimes used to visit the men who were on guard around his castle at night to see that they were doing their job properly, and it was his habit to ask each new one that he saw three questions: "How old are you?" "How long have you been in my army?" and "Are you satisfied with your food and your conditions?" The officers of the Giant Guards therefore used to teach new soldiers who did not know German the answers to these three questions.

One day, however, the King asked a new soldier the questions in a different order. He began with, "How long have you been in my army?" The young soldier immediately answered, "Twenty-two years, Your Majesty." Frederick was very surprised. "How old are you then?" he asked the soldier. "Six months, Your Majesty," came the answer. At this Frederick became angry. "Am I a fool, or are you one?" he asked. "Both, Your Majesty," the soldier answered politely.

47. The soldiers of the Giant Guards must _____.
A. be handsome B. be strong C. speak German D. not smoke
48. The young soldier was _____.
A. six months B. twenty-two years old
C. twenty-two and six months D. We don't know from the text.
49. The new soldier had been in the army for _____.
A. six months B. twenty-two years
C. twenty-two years and six months D. It cannot be seen from the passage.
50. The reason why the King was not satisfied with the new soldier's answers was that _____.
A. the soldier was a fool
B. the King was a fool
C. both the soldier and the King were fools
D. the King asked the soldier the questions in a different order.

第二节 (共 5 小题, 每小题 2 分, 满分 10 分)

根据短文内容, 从短文后的选项选出能填入空白处的最佳选项, 选项中有

(共 11 页)

Tests can be stressful even for the best students. 51 Fortunately, there are several steps you can take to make your stress much more manageable.

Get Enough Sleep

Getting 6 hours of sleep or less can put you into what's called a sleep deficit(不足), which makes you less sharp mentally and prevents you from performing properly on tests. 52 This way, you needn't stay up for the test and can get a good night of sleep before your big day.

Study Smarter

53 Make a list of the most important things you need to learn and hit the items at the top of the list first. This will ensure they're mostly covered if you run out of time. Make a list of all the work you have to do, estimate how long each item will take, and compare that with the amount of hours you have available. This will tell you if you can carefully read or just skim, how many times you can afford to revise the papers.

Visualize(想象)Success

A proven way to build your confidence is to visualize yourself taking the tests and doing wonderfully. Visualization can not only help you perform better in the tests but can help you remember facts. You can create detailed situations that involve the information you're trying to remember. 54

Stay Calm

There're several techniques that can help you calm down quickly. 55 Just close your eyes, take a deep breath, hold it for a while and then let it out slowly. Your stress will come out with your exhales(呼气).

- A. Be organized with your studies.
B. Extra time on tests can bring success to students.
C. Test anxiety has a negative impact on your performance.
D. In this process you can strengthen the facts in your memory.
E. Breathing exercises can be extremely effective in helping you relax.
F. So it's very important to get all your studying done before your exam.
G. There are options for easing stress and potentially improving test performance.
