Have you ever dreamed about sending a letter to yourself or your friends in the future? While express mail (快递) represents high speed, there is another type of mail appearing in China as a new business—future mail. student in Hefei, instructs one of the companies offering the service.

Lin Xiaofan wrote the letter to her mother in advance to express her love to her mother for next Mother's Day.

“Offering this service makes people slow down and let them understand the meaning of ‘time’ in another way,” said Zheng Zhimin, manager at a “future mail” company in Hefei. Zheng thinks “future mail” letters are “reminders of care, friendship and love.”

While “future mail” is becoming more and more popular, some people are wondering what will happen if the postal address changes or if the company goes broken before the letters arrive.

Zheng said customers are glad to sign a contract (签订合同) to make sure that they can be compensated if their letters or goods are lost or damaged.

Most of the business' customers are college students and young white-collar (白领) workers. Psychologists (心理学家) said young Chinese might have a new way to express their feelings through this service.

Going to college means a lot of changes in their lifestyle for most students. Living in a dormitory remains a major challenges as it means learning how to share space with others who are total strangers.

While some can live together peacefully, others may face conflict (矛盾) that need to be worked out. According to recent survey of students in 12 different universities in Wuhan, only 40 percent of them are satisfied with their dormitory friendships and 35 percent said they keep away from conflicts in the dormitory.

For those living in a dormitory for the first time, sharing things, such as a computer or paper towels, can be a source of conflict. Another common conflict is related to different habits. What they are going to do, such as going to bed, watching movies or studying, will also cause a conflict. Sometimes roommates may also have problems when welcoming guests, especially those of the opposite sex.

However, there are more effective methods to solve problems than shouting at each other. The best way is to talk about an issue (争论) before it even becomes a problem. You should treat roommates honestly and directly, and try to work out a solution. And you can also set up rules that everyone can obey. These rules can be written down in an agreement and be put up in a visible (看得见的) place. Students can also outline which items to share and which are for personal use. They can regulate cleaning duties, agree on a time to sleep, and decide on how to receive guests.

In any discussion it is important to talk with your roommates in a positive way. For example, you could mention your roommates' good personality. This can help them understand you better and make them more willing to compromise (妥协).

56. _____ of the students in the survey get on well with their roommates in the dormitory.

- A. 12% B. 40% C. 35%

57. For those living in a dormitory for the first time, their conflicts may come from _____ sources

- A. two B. three C. four

58. The Chinese meaning of the underlined word "effective" is _____.

- A. 有效的 B. 积极的 C. 合理的

59. In order to solve the problems, the best order is _____.

- A. issue→problem→solution→rules
B. problem→issue→solution→rules
C. issue→problem→rules→solution

60. According to the passage, which of the following is TRUE?

- A. The author did a survey of the students in 12 different universities in Hunan
B. The rules you make can be put up on the door.
C. Talking about others' bad personality can help them understand you better.

第二节 阅读简答 (5 小题, 计 10 分)

When thinking of Britain, many images come to mind: Big Ben, the Ferris wheel, red telephone boxes ... and black London taxis. The taxi has an important role in London.

But what is so special about a simple taxi? First of all, the shape and style are very different from those of ordinary taxis. It looks like a half-car and half-van (半厢式货车). It has plenty of room in the back, which means it's easy for disabled people to use. And the black color makes it stand out on the road.

Besides the style of the car, taxi drivers have an important part in your travel. They have to pass a taxi driving test, and in London it is very difficult. As there are many tourists in London, drivers must know many roads by memory!

Apart from driving you to your destination, it is normal for the driver and passenger to have a conversation. Getting a taxi involves (涉及) a social space which the driver and you share. The image of a London taxi driver is one that is friendly and talkative. Most times when I get a taxi, I ask how the driver is. Then we usually talk about sports or new events.

In China, I've noticed that taxi drivers are usually quieter. Sometimes I try to speak with them in Chinese. And when I do, they usually seem friendly and open to talk. It's also a good situation to practice my Chinese!

61. What does a London taxi look like?
62. What color are London taxis?
63. Is it difficult for disabled people to use a London taxi?
64. What does the writer think of a London taxi driver?
65. Why does the writer sometimes speak Chinese with taxi drivers in China?

The corridor（走廊）windows at the Hangzhou Entel Foreign Language School look a bit different than other schools. They are all decorated（装饰）with beautiful paper-cutting art. But they are not just for decoration.
66. They are also used to stop birds from flying into windows.

Chen Zitong, 14, a Junior 3 student at the school came up with the idea. In early January, she wrote a letter to the headmaster and suggested this. She often saw birds fly into the clean windows and get hurt. After Some online research, she found this solution. "Some people decorated windows with stickers（贴纸）or posters. 67. Then I thought of using our traditional paper-cutting art to take place of them " Chen said.

68. 令她惊讶的是，校长采取了她的建议。 The school organized a paper-cutting art competition. Students' works that got awards were pasted on the corridor windows. 69. 事实上，在 2011 年我们学校就有了剪纸艺术课。 "We have classes once a week for to teach paper-cutting," said Fan Ming, an art teacher. The teaching building even has a display（展示）wall to show students' works of art.

Through the class, Shi Jiawei, 14, fell in love with the art of paper-cutting. "It's very fun. I can design my own patterns（图案）and present（表现）interesting things through it," she said. She created many works like bears, elephants and magpies（喜鹊）.

Paper-cutting also helps students become more patient. Wang Yiyu, 12, was once an active boy. But now, he can carefully design a delicate（精致的）paper-cutting work with scissors（剪刀）and gravers（刻刀）. 70. "I am so proud that I can make it look so perfect." he said

第三节 书面表达

A new invention---computer

Computer is a new invention. It has changed people's life. It has many advantages as well as many disadvantages.

On the one side, playing computer games makes children feel very relaxed and happy. It can ease their stress from study and make them think about problems faster. What's more, playing games can make them have more friends.

On the other side, parents worried about their children very much. They think playing computer games too much will have bad effects on their study. In addition, some students play computer games for whole night, which affects their eye sight.

Every coin has two sides. We should make full use of the computer and use it properly.
