One day when I was 12, my mother gave me an order: I had to walk to the public library, and borrow at least one book for the summer. This was one more idea from her to solve my strange problem—I was unable to read.

In the library, I sat down on the floor and pulled a few _____ 26 _____ off the shelf. The cover* of a book caught my eye. It was a picture of a beagle*. I had just got a beagle at that time, the _____ 27 _____ and only animal I ever had as a child. He shared my secret, but one morning, I found he was _____ 28 _____ to someone who had the space and the money to care for him. I cried and never _____ 29 _____ my beagle.

There on the cover was a beagle which looked just like _____ 30 _____ dog. I ran my fingers over the picture of the dog on the cover. My eyes ran _____ 31 _____ the title, Amos, the Beagle with a Plan. Unknowingly, I had read the title. Without _____ 32 _____ the book, I borrowed it from the library for the summer.

Under the shade of a bush, I started to read about Amos. I read very, very _____ 33 _____ with difficulty. Though pages were turned slowly, I got the main idea of the story about a dog who, like mine, had been separated from his family and who finally found his way back home. That dog was my dog, and _____ 34 _____ was the little boy in the book. At the end of the _____ 35 _____, my mind continued the final scene of reunion*, on and on, until my own lost dog and I were running together in my mind.

My mother's call returned me to the _____ 36 _____ world. I suddenly realized something: I had read a book, and I had 37 reading that book. Everyone knew I could not read. But I had read it. Books could be incredibly wonderful and I was going to read them.

I never told my mother about my 38 experience that summer, but she saw my slow but noticeable improvement in class during the next year. And years later, she was 39 that her son had read thousands of books, got a PhD in the literature*, and wrote his own books, articles, poems and novels. The power of 40 has done it.

Not many years ago, a wealthy and rather strange old man named Johnson lived alone in a village in the south of England. He had made a lot of money in trading with foreign countries. When he was eighty, he gave £ 12,000 to the village school to buy land and equipment* for a children's playground.

As a result of his kindness, many people came to visit him. Among them was a newspaperman. During their talk, Johnson remarked that he was eighty and expected to live to be a hundred. The newspaperman asked him how he managed to be healthy at eighty. Johnson had a sense of humor*. He liked whisky* and drank some each day. "I have an injection* in my neck each evening," he told the newspaperman, thinking of his evening glass of whisky.

The newspaperman did not understand what Johnson meant. In his newspaper he reported that Johnson was eighty and had a daily injection in his neck. Within a week Johnson received thousands of letters from all over Britain, asking him for the secret of his daily injection.

- () 44. Johnson became a rich man by _____.
A. doing business
B. making whisky
C. cheating others
D. buying and selling land
- () 45. The gift of money to the school suggests that Johnson _____.
A. had no children
B. was a strange man
C. was very kind and loved children
D. wanted people to know how rich he was
- () 46. Many people wrote to Johnson to find out _____.

- A. what kind of whisky he had B. how to be healthy and live longer
C. how to become wealthy D. in which part of the neck to have an injection
- () 47. When Johnson said he had an injection in his neck each evening, he really meant that _____.
A. he needed an injection in the neck
B. there was something wrong with his neck
C. he liked drinking a glass of whisky in the evening
D. a daily injection in the evening would make him sleep well

C

People who often eat nuts appear to live longer, according to the latest study of its kind. The findings, published in the New England Journal of Medicine, suggested the strongest point was in those eating them on their daily diet.

Eating nuts was related to a healthier lifestyle including being less likely to smoke or be overweight and more likely to exercise. The British Heart Foundation said more research was needed to show the relation is true. "While this is an interesting relation, we need further research to make sure if it's the nuts that protect heart health, or other sides of people's lifestyle."

The study followed nearly 120,000 people for 30 years. The more often people ate nuts, the less likely they were to die during the study. People eating nuts once a week were 11% less likely to have died during the study than those who never ate nuts. Lead researcher Dr. Charles Fuchs, from the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and Brigham and Women's Hospital, said, "There was a decrease of 29% in deaths from heart disease, but we also saw a great reduction 11% in the danger of dying from cancer."

They suggest nuts are lowering cholesterol* and insulin resistance*. Nuts have unsaturated fat*, protein* and several kinds of vitamins and minerals and they can take the place of snacks like chocolate bars, cakes and biscuits.

Victoria Taylor, senior expert at the British Heart Foundation, said, "This study shows close relationship between eating a small handful of nuts every day and a lower risk of death from heart disease." Choosing plain, unsalted foods rather than sweet, salted, or chocolate-covered will keep your salt and sugar intake down.

- () 48. Which kind of disease had a most decrease for nuts eaters?
A. Cancer. B. Heart disease. C. Stomachache. D. Headache.
- () 49. The writer developed the article mainly by _____.

A. People will become much healthier by eating some nuts at a time.
B. Eating nuts on daily diet can help people keep away from cancer.
C. People with heart disease should never eat any unsalted or sweet food.

D. Eating sweet food has a great increase in the danger of dying from cancer.

() 51. Which column should the passage be taken from the newspaper?

A. Science column.

B. Health column.

C. Entertainment column

D. Tech column

D

When I was young, I went looking for gold in California.

By the time I reached the Stanislaus in California, all the people were gone because there wasn't any more gold. But I realized I was not alone. A man was smiling at me in front of his house one day. In this little house, I saw that a woman had made it into a home. The man smiled, "it is all her work. But she is away for two weeks now." He sighed*, "She went to visit her parents. She will be back on Saturday." The man told me his name was Henry. I visited him sometimes after that.

On Thursday evening, Henry had a visitor, a grey-haired miner* named Tom. He came for news from Henry's wife. Henry took a yellowed letter out and read it to us. It was full of loving messages to him and their friends. When the man finished reading it, old Tom cried for the message in the letter. The next day, another old miner, Joe, came to visit. He asked to hear the letter. It made him cry, too. "We really miss her." He said.

Saturday finally came. Tom and Joe came with a bottle of whiskey. They kept giving Henry whiskey until he was sound asleep.

"Is his wife coming today?" I asked.

"His wife has been dead for nineteen years," Tom said.

"Dead?" I whispered.

"On her way back from her parents', on a Saturday evening in June, the Indians captured her. No one ever saw her again. Henry lost his mind. When June comes, he thinks she has gone on her trip to see her parents. Then he begins to wait for her. We come around to visit so he can read the letter to us."

"On the Saturday night which she should come home, we come here to be with him. We put sleeping drug in his drink so he will sleep through the night. Then he is all right for another year."

"We have done this every June for nineteen years," he said. "Henry was nice in the mine. The first year there were twenty-seven of us. Now just the two of us are left." He opened the door of the pretty little house. And the two old men disappeared into the darkness of the Stanislaus.

() 52. Where was Henry's wife when he was with "me"?

A. She died a long time ago.

B. She was looking for gold.

C. She was tidying up the room.

D. She was away to her parents' house.

() 53. Tom and Joe were _____.

A. Henry's families

B. families of Henry's wife's

C. Henry's old friends

D. old friends of Henry's wife's

() 54. Why did the two miners take care of Henry for nineteen years?

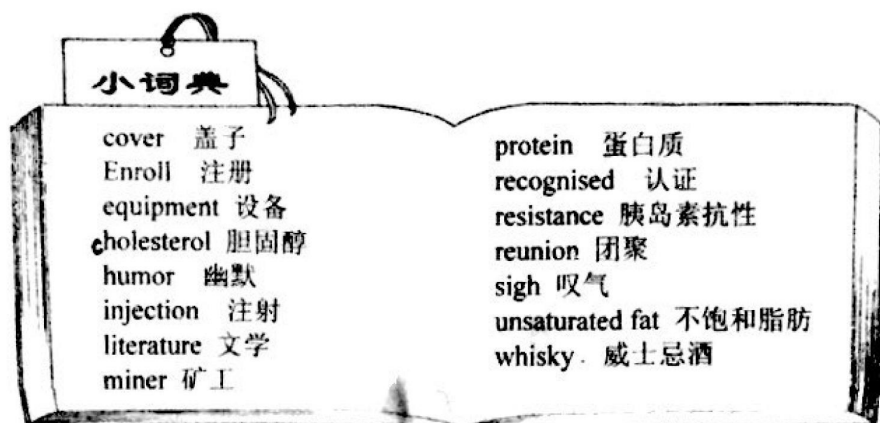

A. Because they had much time.

B. Because they loved Henry as friends.

C. Because they were waiting for Henry's wife.

D. Because they wanted to drink and have fun with Henry.

55. Why did the two miners cry when they listened to the letter from Henry's wife?
