- B.

“Attention, everyone,” Miss Jones looked at her class of ten-year-olds. “Today we are going to create a special card for Father’s Day, which is this weekend.” Then she busied herself handing out the usual paper and art materials to her noisy pupils.

They were a mixed punch. Some came from the rich side of town but most of them were from parents who tried their best to get jobs. So she was not longing(渴望) to carry out this activity.

“Think about all the things that your dad does that make him special,” she said loudly as she came to the last table. “You can write a poem or a short story thinking of the positive characteristics that make your father or grandfather special. The written part of this activity should be completed before you start to create your card.”

Andrew looked at the blank page. He had never met, spoken to, or been hugged by his dad, so how could he write about him? Once when he was looking in his grandma’s photo box he had seen an old black and white photo but it was badly creased(邹邹巴巴) and difficult to recognize. She had quickly taken it from him and buried it. He wrote:

Dear Dad,

You are a person I do not know and would probably not recognize as I have only seen an old photo of you a long time ago. I often think and wonder about you especially when I have no one to talk to about the Saturday’s fixtures(体育活动). One day when I grow up I will do an Internet search to find you but I am not sure whether I will be successful. Happy Father’s Day, Dad.

() 26. Miss Jones asked her students to _____.

- A. make a special card for their fathers. B. make a celebration plan for Father’s Day
C. hand out the usual paper and art materials D. carry out a school activity on the weekend

() 27. The underlined sentence “They were a mixed punch” in the second paragraph probably means “_____”.

- A. Her students were not willing to finish the task.
B. Her students wanted very much to carry out the activity
C. Her students didn’t get along well with each other.
D. Her students’ family conditions were quite different

() 28. Why did Andrew have difficulty in making a special card?

- A. Because he forgot all the things his dad did.
B. Because he thought his dad was a terrible man.
C. Because he had never seen and spoken to his father.
D. Because his grandma and he didn’t like his father.

() 29. From the letter we can learn _____.

- A. Andrew would like to meet his father. B. Andrew’s father had been dead.
C. Andrew’s father couldn’t recognize him. D. Andrew was sure of finding his father.

() 30. Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. Andrew lived with his grandma. B. Andrew wrote a poet for his father.
C. Miss Jones was a ten-year-old student. D. Miss Jones thought highly of the activity.

C.

You may be able to care for your physical health by wearing a mask, washing your hands, and doing regular exercise during the coronavirus epidemic(疫情), but how do you treat your mental health? Millions of people are facing fear, anxiety and depression as lockdowns and quarantines(隔离期) continue.

As part of the government’s “first level response”, the National Health Commission said more than 300 hot lines are now available throughout China. Callers can talk with counseling(咨询) services and people from university psychology(心理学) departments. Depending on your location, you can call one of these 24-hour hot lines for psychological support and general advice if you're experiencing anxiety, depression or panic attacks, no matter whether you're a patient, medical worker or just someone stuck at home.

A survey carried out by the Chinese Psychology Society found that of the 18,000 people tested for coronavirus-related anxiety, 42.6 percent were anxious. "A stable(稳定的) condition of mind can help reduce anger and anxiety, which is helpful for treatment. Providing psychological counseling and appropriate medicine, psychiatry(心理治疗) can play an important role in the battle against the epidemic," said Chen Jun, an expert from the Shanghai Mental Health Center. A healthy mind supports a healthy body. Stress weakens the immune system, according to the American Psychological Association. Managing stress may help people fight off a virus.

In addition to hot lines, online platforms and social media have also offered support to those dealing with the mental stress of worrying about the virus. One virus-related topic, which translates as "how to deal with feeling very anxious at home" has been viewed by hundreds of millions of Sina Weibo users. KnowYourself, a public WeChat account, hopes to reduce panic attacks to those medical workers, patients and their families in Hubei Province.

"People are scared, so to have a voice that helps to make them calm down and kind of guide them through this process can be very helpful," Paul Yin, a psychologist in Beijing, said.

- () 31. What can we learn about the counseling service from Paragraph 2?
- A. Only patients and medical workers are offered the service.
 - B. Over 300 hot lines are available in every city across China.
 - C. It's aimed at people with coronavirus-related mental problems.
 - D. Some university psychology departments offer face-to-face counseling.
- () 32. What is paragraph 3 mainly about?
- A. How the novel coronavirus affects people mentally.
 - B. Why it is important to provide psychological support.
 - C. How people should manage anxiety and stress.
 - D. What kinds of counseling are being offered.
- () 33. Why are a Weibo topic and a public WeChat account mentioned in the text?
- A. To prove the benefits of social media.
 - B. To compare the support they provide people with.
 - C. To show where psychological support is also given.
 - D. To explain the negative effect of the virus on people.
- () 34. What can we conclude(总结) from Paul Yin's words?
- A. Counseling services help people to stay positive.
 - B. It takes a long time to help people overcome their anxiety.
 - C. It is helpful for anxious people to talk with each other.
 - D. Scared people can do nothing but wait for others' help.
- () 35. What's the best title for the text?
- A. Get help online
 - B. Keep healthy while indoors
 - C. Beat the virus by doing exercise
 - D. Take care of your mental health

D.

What would it take to persuade you to exercise? A desire to lose weight or improve your figure? To keep you away from diseases? To live to a healthy of age? You'd think any of those reasons would be enough to get people exercising. _____ 36 _____ It is believed people should consider present well-being (幸福) and happiness as motivators for exercise instead of future health, weight loss and body image.

On June 28, my parents celebrated 70 years of marriage.

Mom and Dad live in Calverton. They have been 56 years of hard work and good times, always supporting each other.

As a child, I remember my parents spending all year around side by side 57 in the garden. They would also do some cleaning, planting or painting and wallpapering.

My parents 58 a house in Elmont. They never believed they'd be able to own their own home, and to them, it was their castle. They worked hard to decorate it and kept it looking beautiful. They taught us to work hard and to appreciate everything we had. Mom likes everything – sightseeing, clubs, anything, and everything. Dad, even today, can't understand 59 she always wants to go out! Mom is still active with the Red Hatters women's group and her gardening club. Dad spoils her by taking care of the house, 60 also watches a lot of baseball and does jigsaw puzzles. The key for them to manage their marriage so 61 is that they respect each other. With the help of my brother, they also stay current with new technology. Their latest acquisition is an iPad.

My brother and I are in our 62 now and we have always been thankful to have them around us. They have shown us what love is, what hard work is, and what respect is all about.

My daughter and I try to see them almost 63 weekend when we play cards together and catch up on the week's news.

My parents are the glue 64 holds our whole family together, making ordinary days special to us all. Nothing can be 65 for us to have such great parents. I even save all of their voice-mail messages, just so I'll have their voice to hear when eventually they are not here. But Mom keeps telling us all she's sure to live to be 100. So we will have a few more holidays, birthdays, and memories to experience.

After two years, Rich and Morty, the popular animated sci-fi series, has at last returned. Season four started airing on Nov. 10 in the US.

The show has become a hit 66 the year 2013 because of the strange situations that its characters find themselves in. The series follows an anxious teenager 67 Morty and his grandpa Rich. When they travel through the multiverse(多元宇宙), they jump through the green portals(门洞) and experience all sorts of crazy sci-fi adventures. In addition to strange interstellar(星际的) problems, the characters also deal with realistic ones. The show is touching on topics such as depression, failed marriage and giving up.

Rich's negative attitude towards life has a bad influence on his friendship. But behind all of that self-loathing(自我讨厌的), 68 is something to touch our inner heart. For example, at one time, he sacrifices(牺牲) himself in 69 to save Morty. Things like this explain the reason 70 the show has won so many fans. Will you watch?
