World Sleep Day, on March 21st, is created (创造) to make people know that sleep is important. Now, many people have sleep problems. They can't fall asleep and often wake up in the middle of the night because of the pressure (压力) from school or work. At the same time, noise pollution (污染) and light pollution also make people sleep badly. The sleep problems are really bad for people's health.

There are many things we can do to help ourselves sleep well. First, we should have regular sleeping habits (习惯). Try to go to bed around the same time every day. Also, we need to make our bedrooms warm, dark and quiet. Finally, caffeine (咖啡因) may keep us from sleeping, so at night we shouldn't drink anything with it like coffee, tea or chocolate.

If we follow the advice above, we can rest better at night and work better during the day.
