IN BRIEF

Lego hopes to reduce plastic waste

Kids play with Lego bricks. XINHUA

More people are paying attention to the negative impact (影响) that plastic waste has had on the environment. Many countries are thinking of ways to reduce the use of plastic, such as ending the use of plastic bags.

Lego, the famous Danish toy company, has come under increasing pressure (压力) to use less plastic. It produces (生产) 19 billion plastic Lego bricks per year, The Telegraph reported.

To cut down on plastic waste, Lego is considering a brick rental (租赁) program. Tim Brooks, vice president of the company, said the rental program was “possible”, but there would be some challenges. For example, lost pieces could be a big problem.

“There is a lot of technical (技术上的) thinking that needs to be done. We are right at the beginning of that,” Brooks told Financial Times.

B

A friend invited us to help serve dinner at Tent City. A number of tents were sent up for the homeless in the area.

I took my two boys with me who were nine and five at the time. They had a lot of questions because this whole thing challenged a number of their common ideas about how people lived in the world.

"Why don't they have homes?"

"Why don't they get food the way we do?"

We talked through the reasons why people end up in this type of situation and the importance of creating a safety net for them. I explained that often the only safety net is others who are more fortunate being willing to share some of their time, care and resources.

The people we served ranged in age from the young to the aged. Many of them were missing teeth or had ripped and dirty clothes. To my surprise, they were specifically thankful I had brought the boys. Many said what fun it was to have active, joyful children around.

After dinner, I saw my nine-year-old son sitting together with several elderly gentlemen who were talking about sports in front of a small television set. He was having a great time sharing and hearing stories. As some of the old gentlemen returned to their tents, I heard him say to them, "Thanks so much for coming to dinner with us." I could see through the expressions on their faces that his simple words touched them greatly. I hugged him a little tighter as we left to go home because it touched me too.

It reminds us that treating people with respect, no matter who they are, can lift all of us up.

61. Before the dinner, the boys thought that _____.
- A. elderly people should eat in the kitchen
- B. a lot of poor people lived in tents
- C. the homeless people were not healthy

62. What did the elder boy do with the homeless?

B. He washed their clothes.

D. He chatted with them.

A. excited

C. nervous

D. annoyed

A. he got to know what his mother said and put it into action

C. he was a kind-hearted, childish and naughty boy

D. his mother's education and guide are unsuccessful

A. We should be ready to serve anyone.

B. We must face the challenges bravely.

C. We should meet all kinds of people.

D. We should treat everyone with respect.

A heavy storm lasted all night, and then everything became peaceful the next morning: blue skies, warm air and a calm, inviting sea touching the shore gently. Dad invited me to go with him for fishing. I was only 14 and fishing had never been my thing, but I decided to go all the same. I'm so glad.

On the road to the harbor(港口), we could see the terrible destruction(破坏) on the coast, but the harbor itself was in fairly good shape. After all, it was protected by the arms of a bay (海湾) that had only one tiny channel to the sea.

Getting on our boat, we noticed two big humps (脊背) in the distance! When we got close, we found it was a mother whale with her baby. We couldn't believe it—there aren't any whales along the coast here. The storm must have driven them into the bay, where the water was so badly polluted that nothing could survive.

The little baby whale—actually as big as our boat—was obviously stuck now. The mother dived under the water and came up suddenly, making big whirlpools (漩涡) and waves.

“She’s trying to help her baby, but on the wrong side.” my father said.

At this point, my father moved our boat, headed it towards the baby whale, and pushed it gently. With our several gentle pushes, the big hump turned over and disappeared under water. It swam up right beside its mom now! Then they struggled to escape, but missed the exit and started heading in the wrong direction. So we hurried up to the whales and tried to guide them towards the bay channel. Gradually, they let us lead them, sometimes rising from the water right beside us to breathe.

As soon as they hit their first part of clean water from the sea, off they swam into the distance. Before they left, the mother whale made a wave with her tail, giving us a trusting look in those huge eyes!

Till today, I always look back to that golden day at sea. We had been with those wonderful animals for almost two hours.

66. The whales appeared along the coast because _____

- A. they got lost in the ocean
- B. they wanted to find some food to eat
- C. they were washed into the bay by the storm
- D. their own living environment was badly polluted

67. It’s clear that _____

- A. the author was not interested in fishing actually
- B. the storm caused the harbor some terrible destruction
- C. the baby whale got stuck in some big whirlpools and couldn’t move
- D. the author was scared to death when seeing two big humps

68. The mother whale failed to help her baby because _____

- A. she had stayed in the polluted water for too long
- B. the whirlpools she had made were not big enough
- C. she failed to find the exit and the bay channel
- D. the waves she made pushed her baby in the wrong direction.

69. What can we mainly learn from the passage?

- A. Mother love is the greatest power in the world.

- B. Saving lives can bring people a sense of happiness.
- C. It's necessary for humans to get along with animals.
- D. It's important to protect our environment.
70. What's the best title of the passage?
- A. Two Uninvited Guests B. A Rescue After the Storm
- C. A Mother Whale's Love D. The Peaceful Harbor

A boy named Reggie was well-known in his hometown because he couldn't hear anything. He was born deaf. Although people liked him a lot, they treated him much d 76 than other people. The other children worried that they might h 77 him while playing together. Adults acted like he was incapable(无能力的) of u 78 them, as if he was a baby.

However, this year people got to understand Reggie a little better. On Reggie's birthday, everyone in town would wear earplugs(耳塞) so that they c 79 hear anything, either. This day came to be known as the Day of Silence. People came to realize how difficult life could be when you can't hear anything. They also learned that Reggie had some a 80 skills.

On that day, no one thought of Reggie as just a deaf person. People saw a whole new s 81 of him. They paid more a 82 to the things he said. They were also surprised by his intelligence creativity, and his a 83 to find a solution to nearly any problem or challenge that he faced. They realized that he had always been like that, and that he simply needed to c 84 with others in a different way. In the end, he was really just like any other little boy.

On the Day of Silence, people learned that although most of us are different from each other

---sometimes in big ways -- we are still mostly the same in our h 85 and minds.
