Possible version 1:

Now Chinese government adds the labor education to the school courses. Different students have different ideas about it. For me, I think the labor education is necessary for students at school. Here are some reasons.

First, children these days depend on their parents too much and some of them even don't know how to peel an apple. So it is important for them to learn how to do chores and know how to look after themselves. What's more, the course helps students understand the idea of fairness because they should know everyone needs to do their part in keeping our school clean. Besides, they will learn some life skills after getting the labor education.

All in all, in my opinion, it is a great idea for school to have the labor education.

Possible version 2:

Now Chinese government adds the labor education to the school courses. Different students have different ideas about it. For me, I think the labor education is not necessary for students at school. Here are some reasons.

First, children these days already have enough stress from school. What's worse, they are busy studying and don't have time to do housework. Therefore, for them, the labor education is a waste of time. Instead, they should spend time on schoolwork. Besides, they can choose other meaningful and educational things to make themselves better. Also, in the future students will have a lot of time to do such kind of things and chores are too easy to learn.

All in all, in my opinion, it is not a good idea for school to have the labor education.
