Do you know the book The Rough Patch (《走过艰难时刻》)? It is a new book by the US writer Brian Lies. Kids love it because of the wonderful story and beautiful pictures in it.

Evan, a fox, lives with his dog. They do everything together. They play, read and eat. Their favorite thing is working in Evan's garden. In the garden, plants grow big and beautiful. But one day, Evan's dog dies. Evan is very sad because he loses his best friend. Every time he goes to his garden, he thinks of his dead dog. Feeling lost and angry, Evan destroys(摧毁) his garden.

New plants quietly start to grow. One day, Evan finds a small pumpkin vine(南瓜藤) in his garden. He becomes happy again. He starts to look after it. Autumn comes and there is a very big pumpkin on the vine. It is the fair(集市) week. Evan takes his big pumpkin to the fair. He meets his old friends there. He enjoys many delicious foods. Best of all, his big pumpkin wins him a prize: 10 dollars or a baby dog. What does Evan choose? You might know the answer.

Now many Chinese cities, such as Jinan and Chongqing, are doing something special. It is called "give way on the zebra crossing(斑马线)".

These cities are asking drivers to stop when they see people walking on zebra crossings. If they don't, they will have to pay a fine(罚款). They will also lose three points of their driver's license(驾照).

This is not a new rule. China added it to the Road Traffic Safety Law in 2011. Why does it become more popular now? Because many cities are working hard to carry it out. There are now more cameras to monitor(监控) the drivers. There are people who explain the rule to drivers.

Zebra crossings should help keep people safe. However, in the past three years, thousands of people lost their lives on zebra crossings in China, reported China Daily. Most of the accidents happened because drivers didn't give way to people on foot.

With this rule, people will be safer when crossing the street. At the same time, it is polite for people to cross the road quickly.

Sometimes school life is very interesting for children, but sometimes it's hard for them. Then as parents you can help them to learn.

Sometimes your children may not like reading, and then you must help them with their reading. 31 Keep good books and newspapers in the house. Let them see you are reading. Take them to visit the library. Let children read to you, and talk about the books with them.

After a day's study, your children become very tired. 32 Then you should teach them how to use time. How long can they watch TV every day? What time should they get up and go to school? 33 You must teach them to do the right things at the right time.

34 It's time for you to do something. You can talk with your children and listen to them. You can talk with them about their teachers and classmates. Listen to their interesting things or difficult subjects at school. 35 If you can do these things, I think your children will like their school life. And they will do well in their school.

根据材料内容,从下面五个选项中选出能填入文中空缺处的最佳选项,使文章意思通顺,内容完整。

A. But how can you help them?

B. Children may think school life is boring.

C. When should they do their homework and go to bed?

D. You can also visit the school or talk with the teachers on the telephone.

E. They may like watching TV and don't like doing their homework.
