When you look up into the night sky, you can see the moon. But do you know that your're only seeing one side of the moon? The other side, also known as the far side of the moon, has long been a secret to us. But now, we have a chance to see what's on the far side.

On January 3rd, China's Chang'e 4 probe（探测器）landed on the far side of the moon. It is the first probe in history to land there.

Chang'e 4 probe has already done a lot of things on the moon. One of its jobs is to grow plants. Chang'e 4 probe took six living things to the moon. Such as cotton, potatoes and fruit flies（果蝇）. The cotton has already started growing. This is the first time humans have grown plants on the moon.

Chang'e 4 probe also took a lot of pictures of the moon's far side. With these pictures, scientists will learn more about the moon.

31. According to the passage, we can't see both sides of the moon.
32. Growing plants on the moon is Chang'e 4 probe's only task.
33. Chang'e 4 probe is the first probe to land on the far side of the moon.
34. Seven living things were brought to the moon by Chang'e 4 probe.
35. The cotton has already begun growing on the moon.

If you were asked to recite (背诵) lines of poetry (诗歌) that have the Chinese character "hua"—which means flower—how many could you recite?

He Liran, 13, had to tack on this challenge on a TV show aired by Shandong TV. He Liran, a student at the Harbin No 163 Middle School in Heilongjiang, competed with over 100 other students. The competitors took turns reciting lines of poetry that used the word "hua", with He Liran replying to each one.

One competitor used the line "As if the vernal breeze had come back over night; adorning thousands of pear trees with blossoms white." He Liran replied with "After one night of wind and showers; how many are the fallen flowers!" At the end, He Liran won, reciting more than 60 out of the 127 lines that were recited in the competition.

Her lifelong love of reading helped her win. Her father started reading poems to her when she was just 4 years old. She has been a bookworm ever since. Though busy with schoolwork, she spares time to study at least one poem each day. She thinks ancient poetry is still important, even in modern times. "Once, I walked along a small path in a forest. The scenery was the same as what is described in the line 'On the sandy path between pine-trees there is no mud', which comes from one of Su Shi's poems. At that moment, the line from his poem naturally came to my mind and I realized that poems can be part of our daily lives," she said.

36. He Liran started to learn about poetry at the age of _____.
A. 4 B. 6 C. 8 D. 13
37. The underlined line in Paragraph 3 probably means " _____ " in Chinese.
A. 一树梨花压海棠 B. 雨打梨花深闭门
C. 梨花满地不开门 D. 千树万树梨花开
38. According to the text, the competitor _____ will probably win the competition.
A. that has recited the most poems with 'hua' B. that studies at least one poem each day
C. that likes ancient poetry best D. that can recite 127 lines of poems
39. Which of the following is TRUE about He Liran?

- A. She competed with over 163 other students. B. Poetry plays an important role in her life.
C. She won the competition in her school. D. She thought of Li Bai's poem when walking in a forest.

40. What can we learn from the passage?

- A. Actions speak louder than words. B. One tree can't make a forest.
C. Better late than never. D. Interest is the best teacher.

Have you tried painting by numbers? Paint-by-numbers is a picture which has many parts with numbers. This has made it easier for people to paint because they only have to paint in each part with its color.

Dan Robbins is the inventor of paint-by-numbers. After World War II, he worked for Palmer Paint. Working in the paint company helped him make the first paint-by-numbers. The idea came from Leonardo da Vinci. While painting, da Vinci often divided the picture into different parts and numbered them, so his students could complete the painting later.

Robbins used this idea and decided to make something that everyone could enjoy. He shared the idea with the manager of the company and got his help.

After working hard for some time, Robbins created paint-by-numbers. At first, sales of the product were low. But in 1951, after a show in New York, paint-by-numbers became very popular. In 1955, sales reached 20 million dollars. Paint-by-numbers is not only popular with children, but adults (成年人) also enjoy it in their free time. Dan Robbins retired (退休) in 1973 and died in 2019. Till this day, his paint-by-numbers is still popular around the world.

【B】 American astronauts Christina Koch and Jessica Meir have completed the all- women spacewalk. On October 18, they went outside in space to change the battery part of the International Space Station (ISS). The spacewalk started at 7:38 am and lasted more than 7 hours, ending at 2:55 pm. People around the world watched it on TV, computers and their phones.

Space walking is one of the most dangerous jobs an astronaut can do. The world's first spacewalk took place in 1965 and the first woman astronaut walked in space in 1984. So far, there have been more than 200 space walkers. Only 15 are women.

This all- women spacewalk was in fact planned for March. But because there weren't enough medium-sized spacesuits, it was completed by a man astronaut and a woman astronaut.

"We don't want to take too much credit(荣誉) because there have been many others ----before us' Meir said. " This is just the first time that there have been two women outside at the same time. For us , this is really just doing our common work.
