Slide into summer with family bonding at a water park with white-water action and wild wave pools. Take your swimsuits and slip away to the country's best family water parks.

Blizzard Beach(Orlando, Florida)

Blizzard Beach has all of the magic that visitors expect from Disney. The waterslides are fast and wild and the kids' play areas at Tike's Peak welcome little ones with a snow-castle fountain(喷泉) and kid-sized slides. The tale of this snow-capped Floridian ski village comes to life there.

Zoombezi Bay(Powell, Ohio)

Noah's Ark(Wisconsin Dells, Wisconsin)

The Wisconsin Dells is known for its water parks and Noah's Ark is the largest of the bunch. The youngest family members can get their feet wet at Tadpole Bay or ease into waterslides while mom and dad ride along on the gentle hills of Slidewinders. Everyone can get wet with the strange sea sponge(海绵) from the bottom of the sea at the SpongeBob SquarePants 4-D movie.

One Sunday, Nicholas, a teenager, went skiing at Sugarloaf Mountain in Maine. In the early afternoon, when he was planning to go home, a fierce snowstorm swept into the area. Unable to see far, he accidentally turned off the path. Before he knew it, Nicholas was lost, all alone! He didn't have food, water, a phone or other supplies. He was getting colder by the minute.

Nicholas had no idea where he was. He tried not to panic. He thought about all of the survival shows he had watched on TV. It was time to put the tips he had learned to use.

He decided to stop skiing. There was a better chance of someone finding him if he stayed out. The first thing he did was to find shelter from the freezing wind and snow. If he didn't, his body temperature would get very low, which could quickly kill him.

Using his skis, Nicholas built a snow cave. He gathered a huge mass of snow and dug out a hole in the middle. Then he piled branches on top of himself, like a blanket, to stay as warm as he could.

By that evening, Nicholas was really hungry. He ate snow and drank water from a nearby stream so that his body wouldn't lose too much water. Not knowing how much longer he could last, Nicholas did the only thing he could—he huddled(蜷缩) in his cave and slept.

The next day, Nicholas went out to look for help, but he couldn't find anyone. He followed his tracks and returned to the snow cave, because without shelter, he could die that night. On Tuesday, Nicholas went out again to find help. He had walked for about a mile when a volunteer searcher found him. After two days stuck in the snow, Nicholas was saved.

Nicholas might not have survived this snowstorm had it not been for TV. He had often watched Grylls' survival show Man vs. Wild. That's where he learned the tips that saved his life. In each episode(一期节目) of Man vs. Wild, Grylls is abandoned in a wild area and has to find his way out.

When Grylls heard about Nicholas' amazing deeds, he was super impressed that Nicholas had made it since he knew better than anyone else how hard Nicholas had to work to stay alive.

24. What happened to Nicholas one Sunday afternoon?

- A. He caught a cold.
- B. He broke his skis.
- C. He hurt his eyes.
- D. He lost his way.

25. Why did Nicholas build a snow cave?

- A. He tried to make himself stay calm.
- B. He needed to keep himself warm.
- C. He wanted to find something to eat.
- D. He intended to get some clean water.

26. How did Nicholas manage to survive the snowstorm?

- A. A researcher offered him great help all the time.
- B. A TV show happened to find him and saved him.
- C. He made use of the survival tips learned from TV.
- D. He was under the professional guidance of Grylls.

27. According to the last paragraph, we can know that Grylls _____.

- A. left Nicholas in a wild area
- B. invited Nicholas to his show
- C. thought highly of Nicholas
- D. found Nicholas's survival easy

C

Earth is home to around 7,000 languages, around half of which are expected to disappear by 2100.

Sometimes younger generations stop learning a language because parents want children to fit in. Sometimes societies force minorities(少数民族) to give up their languages. Native American children of the late-19th century were required to attend boarding schools where educators forbade them from speaking their native languages.

The United Nations ranks endangered(濒临灭绝的) languages according to their risk level. A "critically endangered" language is one that even grandparents don't speak often. New York's Onondaga language is the one with only 50 speakers left. An "extinct" language has no speakers. It is gone forever. Alaska's Eyak language is one of "extinct" languages. The last person who spoke it died in 2008.

Various animals and plants benefit our environment. In the same way, different languages contribute to cultural diversity(多样性). Saving these languages can help our understanding of other cultures. Languages can show how a society looks at the world and what it values. A language may describe something in a way that is funny, too. In Welsh, it rains not cats and dogs, but old wives and walking sticks.

The Endangered Language Alliance wants to save languages from disappearing. The nonprofit group finds native speakers and records their stories. However, if an endangered language is going to make a real comeback, it'll probably get its start in schools. For nearly 100 years, public schools in Hawaii did not teach the Hawaiian language. Now students can keep learning in Hawaiian from primary schools to college and beyond.

Can a language with zero native speakers come back to life? At least one did. In 1881, a Jewish linguist(语言学家) named Eliezer Ben-Yehuda brought the 3,000-year-old language Hebrew back to life. Today it is one of the official languages of the country of Israel, with more than 4 million speakers.

28. What is paragraph 2 mainly about?

- A. How to prevent languages from disappearing.
- B. The reasons for the disappearance of languages.

- C. The development of language teaching at school.
 D. Why people refuse to learn their native languages.
29. How does the author mainly try to explain the ranks of endangered languages?
 A. By analyzing figures. B. By making comparisons.
 C. By giving examples. D. By using official statements.
30. Why should endangered languages be saved?
 A. They play a key part in culture. B. They help minorities to survive.
 C. They diversify the life of animals. D. They contribute to school education.
31. What does the author think of the nonprofit group's efforts?
 A. They are far from enough. B. They are quite difficult.
 C. They have made a big difference. D. They are of little importance.

D

It's always nice to have a little help around the house. But what if you could employ the assistance of one of the greatest minds of the 20th century?

That's the idea behind a new robot modeled after Albert Einstein. Called Professor Einstein and standing at just over a foot tall, this personal assistant can tell you the weather and keep track of your schedule like any other robots. With built-in Wi-Fi, Einstein robot has access to brain teasing games, and can answer math problems and science questions. With natural language speech processing, you can actually interact(互动) with Professor Einstein. And because the robot is connected to the Internet, it is constantly updated with new information.

To help get the perfect replica(复制品) of Einstein, the Hong Kong-based tech company Hanson Robotics turned to the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, the home of the Albert Einstein archives(档案). "We worked very closely with them to bring the product to market," the company's Dr. Jeanne Lim said.

Einstein robot was introduced to the public at the Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas and was quickly hailed by those who saw it. "He became one of the breakout stars of the convention," wrote Melia Robinson on Business Insider. "Crowds flooded into the company to have a look at the little guy."

"Technology is often now very cold and socially isolating(孤立的)," explained David Hanson, the co-founder of the company behind the new robot. "By bringing an lively character into our physical world, we're humanizing(使人性化) the technology instead of dehumanizing the humans."

As for Hanson Robotics, the company has been building human-size robots for over a decade. But this marks the company's first commercially available product. "Professor Einstein is just the start," said Hanson. "We're witnessing the arrival of conversational robots that can walk in our world. It's a golden age of invention."

32. What can Einstein robot do?
 A. Teach you to learn any new language.
 B. Have a regular conversation with you.
 C. Design a number of science questions.
 D. Keep track of other robots constantly.
33. Which of the following best explains "hailed" underlined in paragraph 4?
 A. Broken. B. Improved. C. Ignored. D. Praised.
34. What can we learn about David Hanson?
 A. He expects humans to be less isolated from robots.
 B. He dreams of humanizing humans through invention.
 C. He worries about a golden age for conversational robots.
 D. He stays hopeful about the future of robot invention.

35. What can be a suitable title for the text?
- A. A New Robot Makes Humans Much Happier
 - B. The Golden Age of Invention Is Approaching
 - C. Albert Einstein Changes Into an Assistant
 - D. Albert Einstein Helps to Humanize Robots

(Text 1)

W: Could you please tell me how much I will be paid for the job?

M: Well, may I know what starting salary you're expecting?

(Text 2)

M: This is a great game, isn't it? Everyone's so excited. This is the best game ever.

W: I'm not sure about that. I can't see anything because these people in front of us are always standing up.
Argh!

(Text 3)

W: Peter, what's the matter?

M: Sorry. Just now I went to the library to borrow some books. It cost me quite a long time.

W: That's OK. Go back to your seat. The class is beginning.

(Text 4)

M: OK, we've been to the toy store, the bookstore, and the music store. Where should we go next?

W: Why don't we go to the restaurant to get something to eat?

M: That's a good idea.

(Text 5)

W: I don't like this movie. It's boring. I told you we'd better stay at home watching the soap opera.

M: Look, I've already paid for the tickets, so whether you like it or not, we're going to finish it.

(Text 6)

W: There is a sales event at the shopping center this weekend. Let's go and have a look.

M: I don't want to go.

W: What's wrong? Don't you always go check out these things?

M: Yes, but I've spent all my pocket money this month.

W: Oh no. You're always running out of money. How about asking your parents for some?

M: That's not a good idea. My parents have given me enough money. It is I who spend money like water. I must change this habit. I've decided to find a part-time job and learn to be independent.

W: Good. I'll be with you to find one instead of going to the sales this weekend.

(Text 7)

M: Hello, Mary. This is Tom speaking. Would you like to watch the football game in the stadium tomorrow afternoon? I have two tickets, which my uncle bought last week.

W: That's wonderful. But I have to help my mother buy some food in the afternoon. You know, my father has gone to Shanghai.

M: Well, I think I can give you a hand if you want. I can go shopping with you tomorrow morning.

W: Wow! That's very kind of you. In that case, I will have enough time to do housework for my mother. Then I can watch the game in the afternoon. By the way, when will the game begin?

M: At 2:00 pm. I will pick you up at 1:30 pm.

W: That's great.

(Text 8)

W: Oh, Steven, have you heard the news?

M: You mean the floods? Yes, I'm just reading the paper. It is reported that there was a heavy rain in some places in the south.

W: I got the news on the radio while driving to the office just now. The news says it was raining hard for several days and the streets in many cities were covered with deep water.

M: What's horrible is that the rainwater flooded into many houses. Many families could not run away in time and had to wait for people to help them from danger.

W: The broadcast says soldiers arrived in time, set them free and helped settle them down in safe places. And many volunteers also took part in it.

M: If we were there, we would be volunteers, too. Do you think so?

W: Yes. How about donating some money?

M: That's a good idea. But where can we donate money?

W: Just find the answer through the Internet.

M: Yes, let's do it now.

(Text 9)

M: Honey, since you are an American, which hand should I use to hold the fork?

W: Left for the fork and right for the knife.

M: Got it. It's so troublesome to have western food. I've been learning the table manners since we got married, but I still can't...

W: Well, having western food is more about western culture.

M: Which restaurant are we going to tonight?

W: Sara has booked a table at a newly-opened western restaurant downtown. She said the environment there is really pleasant.

M: Fine. I believe in her taste. Oh, what should I wear?

W: The black suit. But I'm afraid you have to iron it first.

M: Well, please do it for me. I'm going to the bank to cash some money.

W: Er, the restaurant accepts credit cards, but making a budget is necessary.

M: OK, then. Well, 100 dollars for the main course and 80 dollars for wine. Anything else?

W: Don't forget about the dessert.

M: OK, then 40 dollars for dessert.

(Text 10)

M: The UK is using more green energy, like wind, nuclear and solar energy. New figures show that the UK had its greenest year ever in 2017 for producing electricity. In 2017, the UK had its first coal-free day for over 150 years. The UK broke 13 clean energy records in 2017. In June, wind, nuclear and solar power produced more electricity than gas and coal. It is the first time this has happened. The UK's power system is now the fourth cleanest in Europe and the seventh cleanest in the world. The UK has been trying to reduce how much coal it uses. Coal now supplies less than 7% of the UK's electricity. The government wants to use less gas to meet its greenhouse gas target. The World Wildlife Fund is pleased that the UK is moving towards greener energy. It said, "We have never been cleaner or greener, and we are on target for an even better year in 2019."

Dear Paul,

I've learned that you intend to start your further learning of a ball sport. Therefore, I'm writing to recommend you learn to play ping-pong.

The reasons for my recommendation are as follows. To begin with, it is a sport that you have been interested in and talented for. Besides, playing ping-pong helps to build up your body and mind, thus keeping you fit and active. In addition, you are likely to make friends with excellent Chinese ping-pong players who are eager to share their skills with you.

Since you want to learn it better, I suggest you find a professional coach to instruct you and do more practice. I'm sure you will soon make great progress in playing ping-pong.

I'm looking forward to hearing from you.

Yours,
Li Hua
