We start to believe that our positions are more important than our happiness. They are not. If you want to be a more peaceful person you must understand that being right is almost never more important than allowing yourself to be happy. The way to be happy is to let go, and reach out. Let other people be right. This doesn't mean that you're wrong. Everything will be fine. You'll experience the peace of letting go, as well as the joy of letting others be right.

You'll also notice that, as you reach out and let others be "right", they will become less defensive and more loving toward you. They might even reach back. But, if for some reason they don't, that's okay too. You'll have the inner satisfaction of knowing that you have done your part to create a more loving world, and certainly you'll be more peaceful yourself.

D

Besides calling 911, here is what to do in some life-threatening emergencies when no one is around to help.

Lost in the wilderness

First, you've got to acknowledge you're in trouble. Stay where you can be seen clearly and remember to rest. Keeping a sense of humor helps too—it reduces stress and helps creative thinking. In a wide open area, make a colorful cross out of rocks to show your present position.

Choking

Aim to hit the top of the chair against your stomach, in the soft part below the bony upside-down V of the ribs (肋骨). Make a sudden push against the chair. If you still can't breathe after six tries, call 911, even if you can't talk. Write the word choking somewhere nearby, and leave the line open until help arrives.

Severe bleeding

Use your hand or clean cotton, or paper towels, or a scarf, or any cloth you can find, and push down on the wound until the bleeding stops. But if you put a band around your leg tightly, you're going to close the vessels (血管) to the entire leg. In this way, you could lose your foot.

Bear attack

If you surprise a bear, don't run away. That invites an attack. Instead, stand up and back away slowly, without looking the bear in the eyes. If it does charge at you, stick out your chest, raise your arms, and spread your legs. Shout at the bear, to frighten it. If it's going to attack, lie face down, with your hands held firmly behind your neck. Play dead until you're sure the bear is gone.

32. When you see a colorful cross made of rocks in the wilderness, you know _____.
A. someone is bleeding B. someone is choking
C. someone is lost D. someone is attacked by a bear
33. If you are still choking after six tries, you should _____.
A. keep a sense of humor B. call 911 and leave the line open
C. use your hand our clean cotton D. lie down with your hands behind your neck
34. Don't tie around your bleeding leg tightly, or you could _____.
A. stop bleeding B. reduce stress C. lose your foot D. cause breathlessness
35. The passage is mainly teaching us how to _____.
A. survive the emergencies B. avoid a bear attack C. deal with a choke D. find our way

The benefits of keeping a journal (日志)

If you want to grow, one important thing you should do is keeping a journal. It may seem simple, but it can make a big difference in your life. I have been keeping journals for years. Writing all the lessons I learn and all the ideas I get has become a habit for me. 36 Here are some benefits you will get by keeping a journal.

◆ It prevents you from losing an idea. Have you ever gotten an idea only to lose it later because you didn't write it down? 37 But then I developed the habit of writing down every idea that came into my mind as soon as possible. If I'm away from my computer, I usually write it down on a piece of paper that I bring wherever I go. I will then transfer the idea to the journal in my computer.

◆ It helps you review all the lessons you've learned. By reviewing your journal, you can quickly see the lessons you've learned and the ideas you've gotten. 38 You can use the ideas to drive yourself forward.

◆ 39 After keeping a journal for years, you can look back at it and see how far you've gone. Things that were big problems in the past might seem small today. The raw ideas you had in the past might have been realized today.

◆ It helps you expand your ideas. When you try to come up with a sentence to express an idea, you are thinking actively about it. 40 In the end, you will expand your ideas.

- A. I often experienced that myself.
B. It trains you to express your thoughts.
C. It allows you to see your progress over time.
D. Just use whatever tool you feel comfortable with.
E. Thinking actively helps you connect your idea to another idea.
F. And to be honest, I can't imagine what my life would be like without it.
G. Then you can do whatever necessary to avoid repeating the same mistakes.

书面表达

Dear David,

I have heard that you are to be the designer for the new library in our city. Considering the needs of disabled people, I'd like to offer several suggestions.

To begin with, a ramp for wheelchairs must be designed at the entrance to the library, and special passages and toilets should be built to ensure the disabled can use them easily. Besides, reading rooms should be on the first floor. What's more, all the computers should be equipped with special software for the blind. Therefore, they can freely do typing and download information. In addition, book shelves should be designed to be reached by people in wheelchairs.

I hope you'll find my suggestions practical. I would appreciate it if you could consider my proposals.

Yours,
Li Hua
