Have you ever wondered if the cold you have is really a common cold or the flu? Most people don't know the differences between them. Here's some information about colds and the flu.

	A cold	Flu
Progress	It takes a couple of days to build up. You may have a sore throat on Monday, and then have a headache on Wednesday.	It usually starts suddenly. Patients can clearly tell the time when the flu hits them — after lunch or yesterday afternoon, for example.
Temperature	Commonly, the temperature rises to around 37.2°C or 37.7°C and hasn't big changes.	The body temperature is usually much higher — at least 38.3°C. Feeling cold and body aches are flu signs.
Life	People often keep on their common life as usual and get out of bed for work or other social activities.	Putting on much isn't enough, and you still feel very cold. Dragging (拖拽) yourself out of bed can seem impossible. You usually feel tired and sleepy.
Results	You may have a runny nose and cough from a head cold (伤风).	It can cause a lot of coughing and even trouble in breathing.

“Each year tens of thousands of people die of flu,” Dr. Yul Ejnes says. And the flu vaccine (疫苗) can help prevent it. Of course, it’s best to get your flu vaccine at the beginning of the flu season — usually in the fall.

A person called me while I was busy writing yesterday. "I'm reading your book," he said. "There's a typo (打印错误) on Page 383."

"Thanks, but you don't need to tell me about it," I said politely.

He was quite surprised. He expected me to write down the information and then have a talk with him. Instead, I simply thanked him for calling and ended it.

I got many calls like this in the past 25 years. I knew they wanted to be kind to me. But that kindness often lost the primary meaning. Most of the time, people hoped that I'd become friends with them or I could follow the free advice happily. The typo could set up a relationship between us.

This was where they went wrong. They wanted to have a relationship with me, but they didn't really understand me.

I'm a busy writer. I've written 60 books, over 12,000 pages, in total. No one is going to print my early books again, so there's nothing I can do about the typo. Also, I have lots of important tasks to finish.

So, a better way to begin a talk with me might be as follows:

"Hi, Bon. I'm reading your book. There's one thing in it that I'd like to briefly discuss with you. It'll take you a few minutes. Do you have free time now?"

This works beautifully in daily life. If you want to set up a relationship with someone, you need to know what he thinks, needs and fears. In other words, you have to, as the old saying goes, "Put yourself in the other person's shoes."
