V. 阅读理解。(每小题 2 分，共 10 分)

In China, students go to school in many ways. Some students go by bus, some go by bike and some walk to school. Do you know how Japanese (日本的) students get to school? In the city, students usually go to school near their home. So many students walk to school. It usually takes them 5 to 10 minutes to get to school. But in the village, schools are usually far from students' home. It usually takes them 40 minutes to an hour to walk to school. So many students in the village get to school by train because it goes quickly and doesn't need much time.

Many Japanese schools are small. And students seldom (很少) take the school bus. Parents also seldom drive their children to and from school. Sometimes children walk to school with their friends living next to them. But there are usually lots of cars on the road, so parents usually watch on the road so their children can cross the road safely.
